War's tragic miscue Mom's call to action

By JOHN SCHNEIDER
Staff Writer

Barbara Peltier's only son, Jimmy, died in Vietnam when he was 19.

It was not a hero's death, but a tragic miscue of war.

"He was killed by one of his own men," said the DeWitt woman in the flat tones of one who has grieved too much. "He was shot. He was driving a truck near Saigon. Somebody didn't have his gun on safety."

Army Pfc. James Peltier arrived in Vietnam on Christmas Day, 1967, and died less than four months later. He received the Purple Heart and the Bronze Star and was buried in DeWitt.

LARGELY BECAUSE of Jimmy, the mother spent two days in a sweltering room of Lansing's Plaza Hotel this week, representing DeWitt at the 39th annual state convention of the Blue Star Mothers of America Inc.

"I can't help my own son," she explained, "but maybe I can help somebody else's son."

Peltier was one of about 80 women from 41 chapters across Michigan who, dressed in the white dresses and caps of the organization, attended the convention which included reports from the various chapters, election of officers, a banquet and other activities.

Blue Star Mothers is a national group of women with sons or daughters now or previously in the armed services.

THE CLUB ORIGINATED in Flint in 1942 and spread throughout the U.S. Its members hung white silk widow banners which bore one blue star for each family member in the armed forces. For men and women killed on active duty, the blue stars became gold.

Volunteer efforts of the Blue Star Mothers are directed toward Veterans Administration Hospitals. The Mothers organize fundraisers, collect clothing, books, games, etc., for hospitalized veterans, visit patients and take them on outings and perform a variety of other volunteer services.

Peltier, who has been a Blue Star Mother for about 12 years, is former president of the DeWitt chapter and former co-chairman of the state hospital committee.

She said her membership in the organization has made it "a little easier" to accept her son's death.

"I'VE BEEN TO all the VA hospitals," she said. "I didn't think I could do it, but I made up my mind that I would."

Peltier's husband, A.B. Peltier, is a disabled veteran who was wounded in World War II and spent seven months in a German prison camp.

She has three grandsons. Asked if she would ever try to discourage them from joining the armed forces, she said, "No. I'd let them choose for themselves."

While Peltier said she considers the Vietnam War "a waste," she harbors no bitterness about her son's death.

"Jimmy was called to serve," she said. "They gave him a truck to drive and he was in seventh heaven."
