

Bohmett

A BROKEN HEART

44

Is What Caused the Death of Catherine Bohmett

WHO PASSED AWAY AT THE COUNTY POOR FARM FRIDAY.

Her Dependent Condition was the Source of Great Grief.

Mrs. Catherine Bohmett, an old German lady aged 76 years, who has been an inmate at the County Poor Farm for the past three years and over, died Friday last and was buried Sunday afternoon. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Blanchard of the Baptist church, and the remains buried at the farm cemetery.

The story of the old lady's life is a sad one. She was taken to the Farm on Dec. 12, 1892, by Supervisor Courtright of DeWitt, in which township she had long resided, living near the southern border. In earlier days her husband had been a prosperous and well-to-do farmer, but Mr. Courtright explained when he left the old lady with the Overseer that her husband had been a drinking man and whiskey was responsible for it all, having caused the loss of their home and had made them paupers. In conversation with THE NEWS relative to the old lady Mrs. Service, wife of Overseer Service, said:

"I am satisfied that the old lady died of a broken heart. She grieved constantly over her reduced condition which seemed extremely humiliating to her. She had three children living, Christian Bohmett, who lives in Ovid township, Mrs. Herman Deelman, who we were told lived in Montana, but our letters to her were returned marked "no such party here." There was also another sister who lived I believe in Indiana." Whether they were unable, or not disposed to take care of their mother is not known." She is said to have faithfully read her bible each day and Mrs. Service assured THE NEWS that she always tried to do right.

How little thought is given nowadays to the unfortunates who "travel their weary way over the hills to the poor house," men and women, many of whom, who in younger days were merry boys and girls; happy young people who looked upon the world with its bright and cheerful anticipations for future success as might be wished.

Not so many of that kind in a county like Clinton perhaps and yet it has had a share and 'tis safe to venture that the interior walls at the old poor farm some of St. Johns have witnessed many a pitiful sight and could they but speak would tell hosts of stories on the shadow side of life. They have seen the quiet, terminated countenance of some old man or woman who had decided to be brave under trials, loose its resolution when no one has been about they had noticed a tear trickled down the aged, wrinkled face, as memory brought to view the scenes of happy days and then lived over just for a moment some pleasant event in the life of long ago. Melancholly indeed are the lessons taught such events, and yet they are full of suggestions and preach a sermon in themselves. Cold hearted and cruel indeed must be he who allows a mother, father or any near relative to be taken to the poor house, if its prevention is a possibility.

Landmark Goes DeWitt Bank Becomes 'A Branch'

By FAYE HANSON
State Journal Correspondent

DEWITT—A DeWitt landmark took on a new look Monday when the American Bank and Trust formally took over the reins of the Woodruff State Bank.

Sixty-five years ago on Jan. 1, 1904, brothers Clayton C. and Mark Woodruff, as equal partners, opened the Woodruff Brothers Bank on the east side of the 100 block of S. Bridge Street in a building long since torn down.

Until then Clayton had been a farmer just outside of the village and Mark was a merchant in the town.

Their forebears were among the first settlers in the DeWitt area.

Lawrence Woodruff, son of Clayton, shortly before World War I, replaced Mark as partner following war service, he remained in the bank until his death in 1951.

A second son of Clayton, Ralph, was admitted to partnership in 1923 and was president of the bank at the time of the merger.

The bank in 1953 was chartered by the State Banking Department and incorporated as Woodruff State Bank, at the same time it became a member of Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

The bank was closed in February 1933 by the National Bank Holiday, but opened its doors to the public again in 10 days, one of the few banks in the state to do so.

Another member of the Woodruff family, Howard, son of Lawrence, became affiliated with the bank in 1950.

In a statement, Ralph Woodruff said; "A small bank cannot provide the electronic equipment, attract capable officer replacements when necessary, or provide the funds and services to which the community is entitled."

The new operation will be known as the Woodruff Office of the American Bank and Trust; Ralph will be a Vice-President in charge of the Woodruff Office and Howard will be an assistant vice-president.

Ralph's son, Russell, is with the Community National Bank in Pontiac.

Ralph says that 1968 has truly been a year for him to remember, on January 1 he celebrated 40 years in banking, he signed the merger on August 12 and on September 16 the bank experienced its first holdup when two bandits made off with several thousand dollars. They were later apprehended.

'Happy' Cookies Her Specialty

By FAYE HANSON
State Journal Special Writer

DEWITT—"Where there's a will there's a way" at least with Mrs. Harry Bollinger of 124 W. Jefferson St.

Take for example the case of the antique cookie molds.

Search as she might, Mrs. Bollinger could not find antique cookie molds that were cheerful.

"They were all of grotesque figures or frightening animals," she said. "And I didn't want to make cookies that would frighten my grandchildren."

So her husband bought a set of chisels and some soft pine and said, "O.K., make your own."

The couple was living in Newark, Del., at the time Mrs. Bollinger launched her wood-carving hobby, and, after several years, she continues to work with pine, walnut, cherry and mahogany.

Carving a mold, she explained, takes from six to 12 hours. Then it is stained and waxed.

An antique-lover, Mrs. Bollinger finds her hand-carved molds of fruit, animals and nursery characters blend well with early American settings.

Now a Grand Rapids furniture company is reproducing her molds for sale.

POPULAR ST. JOHNS YOUNG COUPLE WED

MISS MARY BOND AND LLOYD MARZKE SPEAK VOWS AT
ST. JOSEPH'S SATURDAY

Miss Mary Bond and Lloyd Marzke, popular St. Johns young couple, were united in marriage on Saturday morning, August 26, 1933 at an 8 o'clock ceremony at St. Joseph's Catholic church. Fr. H. W. Rosebrook, local pastor, performed the ceremony in the presence of the immediate families. The bridal march was played by Mrs. Leo Snitgen, and Miss Elizabeth Parish sang "Ave Maria."

The bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Bond, was attractively attired in a navy blue crepe gown with matching accessories and her corsage was of pink rose buds, bachelor buttons and stock. Her maid of honor, Mrs. John Martin, wore a frock of slate grey with accessories of matching shade. Mr. Martin assisted the groom, who is the son of Mrs. Edith Marzke of this city, as best man.

The bride graduated from St. Johns high school with the class of 1929 and was employed in Detroit and Stockbridge for a year before accepting her present position as bookkeeper in the D. L. Hunt insurance office, where she has been three years. She expects to continue her work.

After attending the local high school Mr. Marzke held a position in Lansing for some time and is now employed in the F. C. Burk department store.

Out-of-town people who attended the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Dunsbach and children and Mrs. Roman Stump and daughter of Lansing.

Bond

Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. James A. Perry of Perry, Michigan, announce the engagement of their daughter, Greta Bell, to A/3c Ernest E. Bond, son of Mrs. Edna Bond of DeWitt.

Miss Perry is attending Alma college and is affiliated with the Kappa Iota Sorority. Her fiancé recently completed training at Sheppard Air Force Base, Wichita Falls, Texas, and is now located at Chanute Field, Illinois.

No date has been set for the wedding.

A service of unusual interest took place at St. Joseph's Catholic church this morning at nine o'clock when High Mass was sung by Rev. Fr. Lynch in honor of the fiftieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Boron of Olive.

The little church was simply but prettily decorated in yellow and white ribbons and flowers in honor of the event. The service was beautifully solemn, the extraordinary occasion lending impressiveness to the mass. Following the mass Fr. Lynch made a few fitting remarks, congratulating Mr. and Mrs. Boron on their fifty years of well spent life together. The short address was followed by the benediction.

Following the church service, relatives and immediate friends to the number of one hundred went to the pleasant country home of Mr. and Mrs. Boron where dinner was served and the day given over to merry-making.

Many beautiful gifts, expressive of the love and esteem in which this father and mother are held were bestowed upon them by their sons and daughters, grandchildren, nieces nephews and friends. A beautiful solid gold cross and chain were given to Mrs. Boron by her children, while the father received an easy chair in which to rest at the close of the day.

In these many years of life together Mr. and Mrs. Boron have suffered the privations incident to all pioneer life, and have gratefully noted the development of the country from almost a wilderness to the garden it has become. And while these changes have slowly but steadily taken place they have been doing their share early and late.

Mr. and Mrs. Boron were natives of France, Mr. Boron having been born in Belfort on June 28, 1837, and Mrs. Boron at the same place in November the following year.

When Mr. Boron was nine years of age his parents left France and coming to America settled in Ohio where he remained until after his marriage to Miss Celestine Brya which occurred in Canton on July 11, 1857, the latter having come from the mother country when but a little girl seven years of age.

Forty-one years ago Mr. Boron and his family moved to Michigan, and with the exception of one year in De Witt they have been constant residents of Olive, living for the past thirty-four years on the farm that is still their home. Mr. Boron is known far and wide as an auctioneer of ability.

Five sons and two daughters were born to Mr. and Mrs. Boron, all of whom with their children and grandchildren are at the old home today assisting in making the golden anniversary an occasion that will live for years in the memories of all those participating in the festivities. The children are Mrs. Byron Tripp of St. Johns, Augustus, Frank and Louis, Jr. all of Olive, Mrs. C. E. Caskey of Chicago, Eddie F., who is head clerk in the dry goods store of G. H. Chapman and Fred A., cashier of the Dollar Savings Bank of Akron, Ohio. There are thirteen grandchildren in the Boron family and five great grandchildren.

OLDEST IN MICHIGAN

AUCTIONEER BORON HAS HAD A LONG AND BUSY CAREER.

Forty-three Years of Continuous Auctioneering—Over 3,000 Sales and Never Missed a Sale.

The oldest auctioneer in Michigan is the title to which Louis Boron has the undisputed claim. Clinton county's veteran auctioneer can point to a record of forty-three years of continuous auctioneering, a record equaled by no other man in his line of business in Michigan. During this time he has cried over three thousand sales in Clinton county and other Central Michigan counties, at which two or three million dollars worth of property has been knocked down to the highest bidder. Most remarkable of all, is that he has never yet missed an appointment during the whole forty-three years.

Mr. Boron is a Frenchman by birth, having been born in Belfort in Alsace in 1837. When seven years old he came with his parents to America, settling in Starko county, Ohio, near Canton where he remained till his majority. From there he removed to Wayne county near Worcester and soon after started in the auctioneering business with a man named Miller, one of the foremost auctioneers in the state of Ohio. He was with Miller for three years acquiring a thorough knowledge of the business that served him well in later years.

LOUIS BORON.

Michigan's Oldest Auctioneer.

He came to Michigan forty years ago, first living two miles west of DeWitt and afterwards moving to his present farm on section 3 of Olive. From that time to the present his name has been familiar to every inhabitant of Clinton county. When he first came here there was a considerable number of French settlers in the county, and Mr. Boron's knowledge of French, which he spoke as readily as English, was almost indispensable. He also speaks German equally well, and as the German population of the country increased this proved of even greater value in his work. He is believed to be the only auctioneer in Michigan who ever paid a license, the law having required this for a number of years during the sixties. His skill as an auctioneer is well known, and he still enjoys his full share of the business. His health has always been robust, and, in spite of all the hardships incident to the work of auctioneering in all kinds of weather, he never failed to be on hand at the appointed hour. In fact illness never interfered with his work at all until last spring, when he suffered severely with grippe and was obliged to have some assistance at several sales, though he was always on hand to start the sale, even in the face of his doctor's orders.

MR. AND MRS. AUGUSTUS BORON

COUPLE HONORED
ON ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Boron
of St. Johns Spoke Vows
February 28, 1882

The home of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Boron of Olive township, presented a joyous scene on Sunday, Feb. 28, when 70 friends and relatives assembled to celebrate the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. Boron's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Boron of St. Johns. The honored couple, with their son and his wife, received the guests.

The house was tastefully decorated with gold and white streamers and wedding bells. A basket of yellow roses occupied the center of the dinner table about which were seated Mr. and Mrs. Boron and their brothers and sisters. A huge golden wedding cake was one of the attractions of the feast.

C. E. Caskey of Akron, O., in behalf of the relatives and friends, presented Mr. and Mrs. Boron with a purse of gold. Other gifts and letters and telegrams of congratulation were received.

Mr. Boron was born in Ohio in 1860 and came to Clinton county at the age of five. He attended the rural school and later went to a select school conducted by Mrs. Bement at Dewitt.

Mrs. Boron, the daughter of John and Luan Austin, was born in Cattaraugus county, N. Y., in 1864 and came to Clinton county at the age of four. She attended the Rheubottom school a short distance from her home.

Mr. and Mrs. Boron were married in Lansing at the Chapman hotel, which stood on the site now occupied by the Vandervoort Hardware Co. Frank and Emma Boron, now Mrs. C. E. Caskey of Akron, O., and Frank Merrihew and Hattie Hamilton of Olive, witnessed the ceremony. The weather on that eventful day was very bad and the journey home was made by horse and buggy, four hours being required to cover the 14 miles back to the farm in Olive.

Two sons were born to the young couple, Willie M., and Alvin, who died in 1922. The older son now lives on the farm and his two sons Gale and Louis represent the fifth generation of the family residing on this same farm.

Relatives from Akron, O., Detroit, Lansing, Laingsburg and St. Johns were among the guests at the wedding celebration. Both Mr. and Mrs. Boron enjoy good health and take an active interest in community affairs. They reside at 511 South Clinton avenue.

The services were held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home and were attended by a large assembly of relatives and friends, many of whom came from a distance. Rev. C. J. Kruse, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, officiated and Misses Mayme Fedowa and Stella Schoendorf sang favorite hymns of Mrs. Boron, "Somewhere the Sun is Shining," "Face to Face" and "Abide with Me." The floral offerings were beautiful and profuse, mutely testifying to the esteem in which the family is held in the community. Interment was in Mt. Rest cemetery. Miss Donna M. Ivey was her sister's maid of honor, and another sister, Miss Helen M. Ivey, was bridesmaid.

Flowergirl was Miss Patti Perry, and Allen Lee Ivey was ring-bearer.

By KEN COIN

Greetings from Florida!

Undoubtedly this post card set a few jaws agape when it arrived at the DeWitt Post Office some 90 years ago. It's an impressive house by any standards. I doubt however if it's still standing - Biscayne Avenue is now Highway 1 which runs right along the beach. The house was probably replaced years ago by a big Art Deco hotel; some pink stucco thing with the work "Hibiscus" in the name.

Winfield "Scott" Dills came to the DeWitt as a young lad in the 1852 with his parents William and Maria Dills. The parents were the original owners of the large brick house at Cutler and DeWitt roads. In 1878 he married Ella Bowker, whose family had moved down to DeWitt from Isabella County in 1871. For some years they operated a farm a mile north of DeWitt (later O.K. White's farm) and in 1893 moved into the village. His business in DeWitt was livestock, buying and shipping, and he had a lively interest as a horse dealer.

The notion of "wintering" in Florida caught on early among DeWitt's upper crust. By the late 1890's many area couples were congregating at Orange Heights and Orlando. The Dills wintered at and ultimately retired to Miami where, early in this century, they were able to dabble in the real estate boom of that area.

While I'm here, I don't think I'll be tempted into Miami to see if the Dills' home is still standing, but, being the history junkie that I am, I secretly packed a few old photographs and addresses of some homes my great-great-grandfather built in Orlando 90-odd years ago. Maybe after Mickey and Minnie are done showing me around their place, I'll take them for a ride into downtown Orlando.

DeWitt's 'Grandma Moses' Paints Way to Quiet Fame

Boyd

By FAYE HANSON
State Journal Special Writer

DEWITT — Back in 1876, a Mt. Vernon, Ill., girl of 12 began painting in oils.

Mrs. Nellie Boyd, DeWitt's version of Grandma Moses, is still at it — all 96 pounds of her.

Her talents extend to sculpture, when she isn't busy with the housework, gardening and shopping, although she admits she's given up mowing her own lawn.

"I live pretty much as I always have," she says.

Actually, Mrs. Boyd, who resides at 302 N. Bridge St., began painting somewhat earlier than age 12. She started out with pastels.

If she has any particular painting technique it is that of being letter-perfect, both as to detail and authenticity. She'll spend hours on a leaf or flower, and she'll make certain that plants and animals in her work are native to the part of the country she's depicting.

Over the years, Mrs. Boyd has given away more than 100 paintings, both oils and pastels.

"My biggest problem is never having any of my recent work on hand. Someone's always talking me out of it," she twinkles. "Every time I do a new one, I tell myself I'm going to keep it, but it never turns out that way."

Mrs. Boyd's sculpturing efforts include a World War I soldier monument on the lawn of the American Legion hall at Effingham, Ill., and an angel monument marking the grave of her only son in DeWitt Cemetery.

She has a grandson, Durwood Boyd of East Lansing, and three great-grandchildren. After the wedding of one of the latter, recently, she came home and sketched the corsage she wore for the occasion. She painted it and presented it to the newly-weds as a memento.

Her philosophy, she says, is quite simple: Plan ahead one day and trust in God. "I may not be here to carry out the plans, but I believe in being ready," she says.

DeWitt's 'Grandma Moses' ^{Boyd} petite dynamo of energy

BY MRS LEO J. HANSON

DEWITT—DeWitt has its own answer, and we think a superior one, 'to Grandma Moses, in the person of Mrs Nellie Boyd.

At 88, Mrs Boyd is a 96-pound bundle of energy. She is not only a very talented artist and sculptress but does all her own housework (she lives alone), has a garden and beautiful lawns and flower beds.

SHE DESIGNED and sculpted the World War I soldier Monument on the lawn of the American Legion hall at Effingham, Ill. It is a 6-foot figure of a kneeling soldier holding the flag staff of an American Flag. She also sculpted an angel monument to mark her only son's grave in the DeWitt cemetery. She has done many smaller pieces of sculpture which have been used for lamps, bookends and other items.

Mrs Boyd was born in Mt. Vernon, Ill. and started painting in oils at the age of 12. She had painted in pastels long before this.

WHEN I called on her she was Mrs Nellie Boyd does a little reminiscing as she stands before a picture she painted when she was 15 years old—73 years ago. The canvas shows its age with checkmarks but the picture is still colorful and attractive.

busily sketching pictures of Mule-deer that she plans on using in a painting she is doing of Colorado. Her last painting, an 18 by 24 inch scene of Arizona has been purchased by Mr and Mrs Lee Rummell. It took 166 hours to finish.

Every detail in a Boyd painting must be perfect. She spends hours on one leaf or one flower and she constantly uses reference books to be sure that the animals in her pictures are native to that part of the country and that every detail is correct.

OVER THE years, she has given away 123 pictures in oils, pastels and plaques besides the many she has sold. Her biggest problem is that of never having any of her later work on hand as someone always talks her out of it. Of each new painting she always says "This one I am going to keep for myself." But it never happens.

Mrs Boyd lived on a farm in southern Illinois with her husband, John, until they retired 16 years ago. They came to DeWitt to live because their son was an instructor at Lansing Business University and they wished to be near him. Both Mr Boyd and the son died several years ago. Mrs Boyd has one grandson, Durwood Boyd, of East Lansing and three great-grandchildren of whom she's very proud.

SHE IS A faithful member of the DeWitt Methodist church and many of her paintings are of a religious theme.

She finishes many of the frames she uses on her paintings herself.

When I left her she was making plans to plant turnips, parsnips, radishes and rutabagas in the fall of the moon.

Mrs Boyd is truly one of the "Grand Little Ladies" of DeWitt.

Mrs. Bradley was an active member of the Methodist church, the O. E. S. and the Ever Ready Circle of King's Daughters. The automobile changed DeWitt like nothing else

KEN COIN

Among the hundreds of photographs recently donated to the library by Don Harnish, this one stands out among my personal favorites. It is a perfect illustration of a new generation embarking on a new age; the age of the automobile. Nothing had an impact on the structure of DeWitt which matched the introduction of automobiles.

Dyle Linn, the photographer, is generally regarded as DeWitt's first auto dealer. He opened his Ford garage about 1914, possibly in conjunction with his father's livery and feed barn. He remained in business until 1920 when he sold out to a partnership under the name of Pennell and Coverdale.

But let's not spend any more time talking business history - let's gossip a minute about the names and faces. The big hat identified as #1 in the picture rests atop Reva Treadwell, the original owner of this picture. She's the one responsible for writing the numbers on the face of the picture. A daughter of Charles and May Dunham) Treadwell, she later married a DeWitt fella, Jack "Ray" Derham, a young lawyer from Corunna who had come to DeWitt to practice law but worked at the post office to earn a living. He later distinguished himself in two world wars and was, for a time, a state legislator. Not wishing to remain big fish in a little pond, they followed the bright lights to become littler fish in a much bigger pond.

Number 2 Lawrence Woodruff and his sister Lorna (#5) were children of Clayton and Clara (Lorenz) Woodruff. Their father was the town banker, so nice auto's quickly became a way of life. I don't have any good gossip about Lawrence or Lorna, (they've got too many relatives in the area for me to repeat it if I did) but I do have one "pearl" relating to Lawrence's wife, Elsie. Years ago DeWitt's social scene consisted of town dances. At one particular dance at the Grange Hall my grandfather, who evidently had not been told that there was national prohibition on alcohol, had about two too many. He asked Elsie for a whirl around the floor but imagine her surprise when he began teaching her how to do the Black Bottom! What an unfortunate situation. Poor Elsie: How could she ever explain this spectacle next Tuesday at the DeWitt Women's (and molded Jello) Club. Poor grandpa: don't think for a minute that grandma wouldn't hold this little social faux pas against him for the rest of his life.

Number 3 Hazel Bray is one of those people who could probably be noted as "ahead of her time". That is unfortunate because I think she was right on cue. She was a professional woman who never married and had a career in Lansing. She lived in a big house on the corner of Madison and Franklin and day after day, smartly decked, she would drive to her office in Lansing. For years DeWitt housewives with four loads of laundry already on the line and a sink full of greasy breakfast dishes to wash would look out their windows with the corners of their mouth turned down and say to themselves, "There goes Hazel, poor woman, hasn't got a living soul to be subservient to." About 40 years ago she retired and moved to Lansing. She died only a few years back, over 100 years old.

Number 4 Fred Vail went into partnership with Del Rose prior to 1920 to form the Rosevale Packing Co.

Number 6 John Hunt's family owned the drug store at the southeast corner of Main and Bridge prior to the Brooks family.

Number 7 Bessie Webb was among the last of Capt. Scott's descendants to live in DeWitt. After her marriage to Dyle Linn, they began building the house on Scott street which is now owned by Ted and Cathy Mitchell. (It was, coincidentally, only a few feet from where her great-grandparents had built DeWitt's first log cabin in 1833.) But the Linns' left DeWitt to follow their dream to Hollywood. Dyle's dream was not to become a movie star but to become a furnaceman to the stars with his brother-in-law Bert Scott. It was the Linn's twin sons Carrol and Traverse who had visions of stardom. Billed under the singular (and clever) stage name "The Linn Twins", their short career consisted of a big part (actually two bit parts, if you'll pardon the pun) in an RKO western that I had never heard of and forgot the name anyway. Ralph Woodruff saw it and told me he liked it, but only because it had Andy DeVine in it.

Who would have ever imagined, Capt. David Scott's offspring sharing the silver screen (if only for a moment) with Andy DeVine. Just goes to show what the automobile age has done for DeWitt history.

DeWitt house was home for lawyer DeWitt C. Chapin in mid-1800's

By KEN COIN

Among the earliest lawyers to make their appearance in the frontier settlement of DeWitt was a father and son team, Theodore and DeWitt C. Chapin. They came from Lockport, N.Y. in 1839 and established a successful practice here in the village. The location of their office or residence from this early period had not been found.

DeWitt Chapin was elected county clerk in 1842, a position he held for two years. Soon afterwards, he and his father moved to Ionia and later still to Allegan when the elder Chapin died. About 1853, DeWitt C. Chapin returned to DeWitt with his young family and reestablished his successful practice here. It was recorded that although he was not a "profound lawyer", he was "an excellent pleader before a jury". In 1856 he was again elected county clerk, a position he held until 1862.

Upon his return to DeWitt in the early 1850s, Chapin purchased some acreage on the west side of town, just outside the platted village, on the north side of Main Street. Here, around 1854, he built a large home in keeping with his professional status. The main two-story portion of the house (currently 506 W. Main) was flanked on both the east and west sides with one-story wings (currently the house at 510 W. Main). These wings were somewhat set back from the main structure to allow for porches which faced the street.

Many structures by this date were being constructed with "balloon framing" but Chapin's home was built in the older post and beam method. The entire building was finished in the then popular Greek Revival styling. The main portion of the house undoubtedly had a large formal entrance set to the side and facing the street. Behind this would have been an entrance and stair hall.

Although situated outside of the village itself, this home was never part of a farm. It sat on three acres of land which would have contained a garden plot, fruit trees, stable, chicken coupe and other outbuildings necessary for an efficient home.

In the mid-1860s the Chapin family left DeWitt again and moved to Gratiot County where DeWitt set up another law practice and again entered local politics. He died there in 1874.

By 1860 the Chapin home had been purchased by George W. Cook, a retired farmer. Little is known of Cook besides the fact that he lived in this house for 25 years with at least three different wives: Loretta, Clarissa and Electa. Born in Massachusetts in 1803, he died at this home in 1885.

At the turn of the century the house was purchased by Homer and Carrie Brazee. Brazee, in partnership with Willis McLouth, was both a miller at the DeWitt mill on Prairie Creek and a general merchant for a number of years at the northeast corner of Bridge and Main.

During their ownership the Brazees, who had no children, extensively altered the old home by removing the wings, raising the house onto a modern basement and adding a two-story addition to the west side. The two detached wings were moved to a lot west of the house and joined together to form the long, narrow, one-story house at 510 W. Main.
