Clinton County history book being republished

In 1980, several individuals under the leadership of the Clinton County Historical Society completed several years of work with the publication of an enormous county history. The original purpose was to account for what had happened in the county in the 100 years since the last major history book of 1880. It met its objective, and the 1,100 page book, already a prized collector's item, is impressive in both weight and content. Not only does it cover that 100-year span, it goes beyond that into areas of the more distant past to cover areas omitted in 1880 (and corrects a few untruths). But perhaps the best part of the book is its several hundred family histories, all written by amateur genealogists and included at no cost to the contributors.

The ink was barely dry however, when a great moan was heard across the land. There was wailing and gnashing of teeth, tearing of garments and smearing-on of ashes – in short, there were a whole lot of folks who were plain disgusted with themselves for not getting it in gear and submitting their family histories. Well, take heart – you don't have to wait another 100 years. The Clinton County Historical Society has reactivated plans for another book. So get out your pencils, scrap books, photo albums and family bible and get to work. And please, don't think you need to belong to one of the county's "old families". Histories are being accepted from any family currently living in the county or who have lived here in the past.

Often, just a simple obituary will give the basics for a good family write-up. By coincidence I happened upon one last month for William Martzke, pictured above with his children:

(June, 1904)

Killed by Horse

Lived in Riley 21 years

"Last Saturday evening William Martzke, of Riley, fed his horses some grain and then removed some setting hens for the stable. One flew from him against the horse, which reared and kicked Mr. Martzke twice in the breast. A doctor was called and his injuries were not regarded as dangerous. On Sunday evening he began to grow worse and continued so until 1 o'clock when he died. He was conscious until death and he kept wishing that he could have seen his daughter, whom he had not seen since her wedding day two years ago, and who was coming to visit him in two weeks from her home in the upper peninsula. His sudden death came as a great shock to the family as well as the community. He was a kind father, and an upright honest man.

"William F. Marzke was born in Alt Malzhov, Stolp, Germany, Dec. 15, 1845. He served three years in the German standing army and fought one year in the French and German War. He was married to Miss Hannah Yanz and after moving to Ohio they moved to Michigan and settled on the farm where he was killed. Thirteen years ago his wife died of cancer at Orion. Seven years ago lightning struck his barn and killed one of his horses and a year later his son, Paul, was drowned at Merle Beach. At the death of his wife he was left with nine children and an aged father...Mr. Martzke was a member of the German Lutheran Church of Lansing."

Mr. Martzke has a good number of descendants still living in DeWitt and his grandchildren, I'm told, get together once a year. This should give them a good basis for a great family history. Helen, you've been elected family secretary – the others will fill in the details. Start writing!
