EDUCATIONAL GRANTS: Five extra projects have been enabled to benefit students in DeWitt schools, thanks to mini-grants awarded by the DeWitt Public Schools Foundation and to the initiative of the system's teachers. High School counselor William Rushcamp will continue his work with Project C.A.R.E. [Chemical Awareness-Research-Education] with a $500 foundation grant. He will expand on development of a Drug Information Center, which will dispense information for students, parents, teachers, and others concerning alcohol and mood altering drug abuse and dependency. The award is a lifesaver for Rushcamp, who had already "depleted resources from a vocational grant administered through Clinton County Intermediate School District" while working on the project. The foundation grant will now assist the C.A.R.E. group to purchase additional materials toward their goal of helping people become chemically-free.

A $500 grant to Kelleen Mader, developmental kindergarten teacher, will allow her to bring in Gemini-Music for Children, two 45-minute programs of childrens' music for pupils at Scott and Fuerstenau schools. The gentlemen who present the youngsters' programs emphasize active involvement in the music-making through sing-alongs, hand motions songs, dance tunes to clap along with and even a song that includes sign language.

Linda Ecklund's award of $283 will help DeWitt Middle School students to celebrate Michigan's sesquicentennial in story and song. The social studies teacher's "Sesquicentennial Sampler" will include publishing a commemorative literary booklet

LETTER OF GRATITUDE

The DeWitt Community Christmas Organization wishes to thank each and everyone who helped in any way with the Christmas Project. This is a community project, which is made possible through the generous donations of money, toys, games, rocking horses, dolls, canned goods, cookies, groceries, Christmas bread, toiletries, and hats and mittens made from yarn donated by DeWitt Hardware.

Thanks to churches, clubs, organizations, Mrs. Rae's class at Scott School, DeWitt High School students and teachers, DeWitt Cooperative Preschool, Cub Scout Pack #277, Girl Scout troops, Boy Scouts, Faye Hanson Memorial Library, Terranova Thriftway, and individuals of the community. It made possible a joyous and happy Christmas for 28 families, 53 children, and several senior citizens.

We would like the community to know that we give assistance all year, if the necessity arises in the DeWitt community.

Thanks again,

On Tuesday, March 31, the voters of our School District will be asked to support a $3,980,000 bond debt proposal. This project will provide funding to make needed improvements in our present buildings and move the District ahead in meeting our elementary school needs.

A major concern of all of us is how can we as taxpayers afford this proposal? The need is there. To have an effective school, it is important that the District have good facilities.

Stephen C. Garrett

The State of Michigan provided a means by which districts with low state equalized valuation due to lack of industrial or levied. When the DeWitt Middle School and High School additions were built, DeWitt funded the bond proposals by this means.

Our present bond debt levy is 7.62 mills. To add the present proposed bond debt will NOT increase the 7.62 bond debt rate. It will mean that taxpayers will be continuing the payment for more years.

This concept is similar to making needed improvements in your home in which you would add the cost of your mortgage, extending the time you would be making payments, but would not increase those payments.

Good schools are important to our community. Your support of this proposal is needed.

CITY COUNCIL NOTES

TREE REMOVAL

Auditor Dale Abraham presented the lengthy 1985-86 fiscal year audit for the City of DeWitt at the council meeting Monday evening and the city is "in good shape" according to Administrative Assistant Kurt Klemens.

Linda Ecklund's award of $285 will help DeWitt Middle School students to celebrate Michigan's sesquicentennial in story and song. The social studies teacher's "Sesquicentennial Sampler" will include publishing a commemorative literary booklet which will contain original historical research and oral history interviews of local people, as well as student creative writing and artwork on a Michigan theme. A performance of Michigan music relating to the state's history and heritage will also be given at a middle school assembly.

A MURAL, planned and executed by art students, will be painted on the west wall of the DeWitt Middle School library. The foundation awarded to teacher Alice Nasrey and librarian Alice Hochman the $90, which they had requested for the mural project. The mural, which will depict people in the act of reading, will commemorate Michigan's sesquicentennial.

Fourth and fifth grade students at Fuerstenau Elementary School, who excel academically will have the opportunity to participate in three extra field trips, as a result of the $285.36 award for Honor Student Field Trips. Fuerstenau principal M. Kay Hannah applied for the mini-grant, which will cover expenses of field trips to Abrams Planetarium, Impressions 5 Museum and the research facilities at Michigan State University.

This is the second year of DeWitt Public Schools Foundation mini-grant program. Last year's grants provided $900 for three teachers' projects - a second grade puppet program, a high school quiz bowl contestant response system, and an assault prevention/self-defense program for high school girls.

will again be leading a spring pilgrimage to the Holy Land. Departure date is April 25, 1987, returning on May 8. The pilgrimage will include visits to Amman and Petra in Jordan. Petra is a city, half as old as time, which was the place that St. Paul traveled to and spent three years in meditation and studies following his conversion to Christianity.

Holy sites in Israel to be visited include: Bethlehem, the Sea of Galilee, Jerusalem, the Garden of Gethsemane, Calvary, the Garden Tomb, the Upper Room, the Mount of Olives, the Dead Sea, Masada, the Mount of Transfiguration, Jacob's Well, Mount Carmel, Jericho, the Western Wall and Temple Mount.

Before returning to the US, a two day stop-over in Amsterdam, to enjoy the highlights of the tulip festival, is planned. Any persons interested in being a part of the pilgrimage can contact Pastor or Mrs. Johnson for more information.

Actor Alan Alda said in a speech to the graduating class of Columbia University's College of Physicians and Surgeons: "The head bone is connected to the heart bone - don't let them come apart."

This week Wednesday through Saturday evenings, February 11-14, at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium. Penny Rynstra and Lyn Kressler are directing the large cast, which has been practicing since September. Jeff Kressler is musical director and the pit band will play the lively Fifties tunes under his supervision. Tina Herro is the choreographer.

Chuck Embrey and Carla Hammon play the lead roles of Danny and Sandy in the musical, "Grease," which depicts teenage life in the Fifties, has a few situations and language references which may make it unsuitable for children under age 13 to view. However, none of the language is any more offensive than that shown on prime time TV.

Portraying other lead characters in the play are: Danny Bordui, Doody; Chris Boudreau, Sonny; Jason Brewer, Eugene; Greg Brya, Kenicke; Amy Cooley, Frenchie; Shonda Fowler, Rizzo; Sherry Garver, Patty; Jamie Ives, Vince Fontaine; Raymee Leitz and Marcy Shouks, Cha-Cha; Leslie Philip, Jan; Mark Schrauben, Teen Angel; Mark Scott, Johnny Casino; Amy Sherwood, Miss Lynch; Brad Wieferich, Roger, and Jill Meister, Marty.

The State of Michigan provided a means by which districts with low state equalized valuation due to lack of industrial or commercial property, could meet their needs.

This was the State Bond Loan Fund. Utilizing the State Bond Loan Program, the District borrows through the state the amount necessary to meet the bond payment and interest. The District is required to levy a minimum of seven mills until the amount borrowed from the State Bond Loan Fund and interest is paid back. Another factor is that as the District grows, the state equalized valuation also grows, providing a larger tax base upon which the millage is

DeWitt was the 1986 C-D runner-up in Alma College's High School Quiz Bowl, losing to Vandercook Lake. This year DeWitt drew a bye in the first round of competition held at Alma on Saturday, January 31. The DeWitt team was scheduled to square off against Vandercook Lake, who had beaten Boyne City 185-80, the previous week, on Saturday, February 7.

One of the limitations of a weekly paper is the fact that events which occur after the paper's deadline - Thursday morning, in the Shopping Guide's case - cannot be reported for another week. If DeWitt won its Saturday match, they will be in the final round of competition Saturday, February 14.

Bath High School's team beat Beal City 230 to 30 in the Quiz Bowl's first round. They were to meet the team from Atherton High School last Saturday in the second round. Quiz Bowl, called the "varsity sport of the mind", is a game of quick recall and fast response played between two teams of four players each. The winning school and runner-up in both A-B and C-D divisions receive a $10,000 scholarship and $6,000 scholarship respectively.

Wild Turkey Search Is On

Alan Stewart, Wildlife Biologist, Rose Lake Field Office, is searching for people who have seen wild turkeys in Clinton County. Stewart is interested in identifying the location of these birds to determine how well they are doing and how they have moved from where they were released.

There have been two wild turkey releases in Clinton County. The first release, in 1983, was in the Rose Lake Wildlife Research Area in Bath township. The second release was in 1986 from the Maple River State Game Area in the northwest corner of the county.

If you've seen some wild turkeys, please contact Alan Stewart at 373-9358 or the Clinton County Extension Service at 224-3288. MIDDLE SCHOOL TEACHER COMPARES EDUCATION PROGRAM IN JAPAN, U.S.

If DeWitt Middle School pupils don't appreciate the advantages they have here under the American system of education, it won't be because teacher Larry Arbanas hasn't tried to impress the fact upon them.

After six months' immersion in Japanese education and cultural values as one of three Michigan teachers teaching abroad through a Michigan Department of Education pilot program, Arbanas is firmly convinced that "our system of education here is superior."

Arbanas was chosen for the six months' assignment in Japan, after a year of intensively studying Japanese language and culture at Lansing Community College. Jim Briggs of Bancroft, a teacher at Southfield High School, and Fran Turney, Haslett elementary teacher, were the other two selected for the unique program. The three teachers were assigned to different cities around Lake Biwa, Japan's largest lake, in the Michigan-Shiga educational exchange.

During his stay abroad Arbanas assisted Japanese teachers of English with English conversation, dividing four days weekly between two high

In fact, the teacher has great control over pupils' lives, he concludes. Teachers have heavy responsibilities - for instance, Japanese kids are rarely in trouble with the law, but if one should go astray, the police chief calls - not the parents - but the teacher.

Japanese schools don't have janitors either, Arbanas noted. The students clean up the school. The average Japanese instructor filled with snapshots and memoirs of the six months abroad have been on display in the middle school library and he's a sought-after speaker by local program chairpersons.

He is just now getting used to the DeWitt school routine since his December 29 return to the U.S. His wife Peggy, who is an international student advisor at Michigan State University, and their son, Mikey, 3 1/2, joined him in Japan November 22. [Both were surprised at how quickly young Michael was able to pick up the difficult Japanese language - youngsters here could become bilingual rapidly if they were taught at an early age, Arbanas notes.]

When Arbanas' Shiga assignment ended, he and his family left for Hong Kong December 17, then visited mainland China and spent Christmas in Hawaii before their return home.

Arbanas and his fellow exchange teachers will describe their overseas experiences for the members of the state Board of Education on February 17. As a continuing part of the Michigan-Shiga teacher exchange, a visiting teacher from Japan will spend March 23-24-25 with DeWitt Middle School students and another will ese teachers of English with English conversation, dividing four days weekly between two high schools, Adogawa and Takashima high schools, then visiting six different middle schools on various Fridays. He found both students and teaching staff to be well grounded in English grammar, but lacking in opportunity to practice actual conversational English.

Arbanas was amazed at the cultural differences as he lectured to teachers, students, and parent groups. "You do nothing but lecture," he explained. "At first, it was hard to get used to, never seeing a hand raised. They are shy kids; no one wants to be different or to be noticed."

"The Japanese have a saying which literally means, 'The highest peg gets pounded down', and they grow up being taught not 'to make waves', he said.

Adult audiences followed the same cultural pattern as classrooms full of pupils, Arbanas says. Not a question would be asked in the group assembly following a lecture, but adults clustered around in the hall afterward to bombard him with queries.

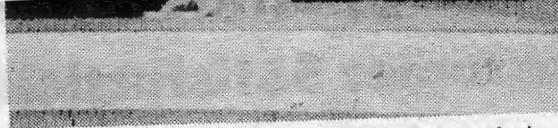

In a way, teaching there is easier "because it is one-way teaching", Arbanas remarks. While more pupils are in a class - parents work and the children's only role is "to learn".

Education like everything else in Japan is very expensive, Arbanas says. Living in Adogawa, he noticed the high cost of living... $2.50 for a cup of coffee is an example. A great percentage of the parents' wages goes to educate the kids, paying for uniforms, schooling, transportation. Filial duty is ingrained and children must study industriously since the cultural pattern requires them to support their elders once they have secured their educations.

It's all tied together, Arbanas points out. Education is the key to good jobs, to earning a better living, hence, the social pressure is to excel in school. "You never see kids push or even touch one another," Arbanas recalls, shaking his head in amazement. "There is no such thing as dating, often until after college... it's a totally different environment."

The Oriental preoccupation with and reverence for education is unsurpassed, the DeWitt teacher found. Japanese use the word "Sensei", which literally means "the Enlightened", when referring to lawyers, doctors, and teachers. Kids there spend a lot more time studying - 240 days in school compared to 180 in this country - Arbanas says, but Japan has a single school system centralized from Tokyo, not local school boards. So everything is the same - there is no time for individuality.

Arbanas firmly believes that so many Asian students want to come to this country for college "Because our system is superior, because it gives them so many choices," compared to the uniformity/conformity in Japan. "It's a more relaxed standard there in one way," and he shakes his head, "yet more pressurized in another."

An English physicist once offered this advice to a traveler in London: "You must not miss Whitehall. At one end you will find a statue of one of our kings who was beheaded; at the other, the monument of the man who did it. This is just an example of our attempts to be fair to everybody."

Elephants and grandchildren never forget. - Andy Rooney

Arbanas noted. The students clean up the school. The average Japanese instructor only teaches 16 to 18 hours weekly, Arbanas discovered, in comparison to the 25-30 hours classroom work which DeWitt Middle School teachers average. But Japanese teachers spend many hours of the day in meetings and conferences.

Even recreational choices are restricted for Japanese pupils, he points out. In seventh grade they may select a sport or cultural program, [such as flower arranging] but they must stick with that one choice and practice it two hours daily for the next three years. They cannot make a change to basketball, for example, if they decide they don't like karate.

"Japan has to be the safest country in the world though," Arbanas asserts, recalling that nothing was ever stolen at school...women could set their purses down at a public event and forget about them...everyone is responsible for everyone else...the feeling of security is unsurpassed."

change, a visiting teacher from Japan will spend March 23-24-25 with DeWitt Middle School students and another will be at DeWitt High School. The last two days of that week, the two foreign teachers will visit DeWitt elementary schools.

Arbanas has many samples of Origami, the delicate paper sculpture at which Japanese are so adept. One of the parting gifts from his Japanese pupils was a Senbazuru, colorful streamers composed of 1,001 tiny paper cranes, symbolizing peace. Another treasured memento is the framed plaque citing "Mr. Lawrence Arbanas...in appreciation for making a significant contribution to Japanese teachers' and students' better understanding of America and its people. You have enlarged the personal horizons of all with whom you have come in contact."

The final sentence of the citation undoubtedly echoes the sentiments of many youngsters who have been privileged to study under Larry Arbanas during his 17-year tenure at DeWitt Middle School.

MORE CPA KUDOS: DeWitt smarties just keep stacking up honors! Bill Kanine was recently notified that he had passed the state exam for Certified Public Accountant. His wife Carla was so pleased that she gave an impromptu surprise party for him in their W. Main Court home. Their children, Jenny and Kristy, and Jim's parents, Jim and Karen Kanine from Shepherd, were among the happy celebrants. Kanine is employed at the KMG Main Hurdman accounting firm in Lansing.

One day an elementary-school teacher said to her class, "Children, I'm going to ask you a question every morning, and anyone who knows the answer will get two days off from school. First question: Who was the architect of the Sphinx?"

Nobody knew, and the class grumbled. The next day the teacher asked, "Who is the extra on the end of the third row in the Red Sea scene in the movie The Ten Commandments?" Nobody knew, and there was more grumbling.

The following morning, the teacher spotted a boy in the back of the class wearing a red dress, a wig, and lipstick. "Who," she cried, "is the comedian with the dress on?"

"Flip Wilson!" exclaimed the boy. "And I'll take off Tuesday and Thursday."

City residents, who would like to be serviced by the expanded water system, are asked to contact city hall individually or prepare petitions, requesting the service for their streets.

City dwellers will soon receive a letter, reminding them that it is necessary to properly number their houses. Some residences do not have house numbers showing, which can be dangerous from a safety viewpoint, according to Kurt Klemens, administrative aide. Police and emergency vehicles can lose valuable time trying to reply to distress calls, if the house is not properly marked. "Seconds mean life in many instances," Klemens stresses, and the city ordinance regulating correct house numbers is going to be enforced.

Approval was also given to cabaret license renewals for both DeWitt Bar and Prairie Creek clubhouse, and to amended by-laws for the Downtown Development Authority. At the corner of North Rampart and Conti streets in the French Quarter of New Orleans stands Our Lady of Guadalupe Church, which was built in 1826 and restored in the 1920s. Shortly after restoration was completed, a statue of a saint was received.

Workmen uncrating and installing the statue did not know which saint it represented. The only identification was the Italian phrase "e spedito" on the outside of the crate. They assumed the statue was that of a Saint Expedite.

And so it remains today: the only statue of Saint Expedite in the world. Local businessmen are sure that it is their patron saint.

Did you see the high school musical this year? I hope you did! You just couldn't sit through that production without feeling a great sense of pride in our students and staff and having an appreciation for their accomplishment. I am also impressed with the level of community support and the respect shown by the community and students.

Stephen C. Garrett

There are some who feel that the musical "Grease" is inappropriate for high school youth and I respect their feelings. However, as I sat through the DeWitt High School production of "Grease", it was my feeling that it was handled well. I believe that our high school students are at a level to appreciate that they are playing roles and that because they play a role does not mean they are supportive of it.

I would like to thank everyone who makes such a production possible in our school. To the directors, Lyn Kressler and Penny Rypstra; the musical director, Jeff Kressler; and the choreographer, Tina Herro; a round of applause. Thanks to the pit band: Mr. Jeff Kressler, Mike Ferland, Matt Wilcox, Ethan Yabs, Gary Clavette, and Lisa Koelsch.

Thanks to all those people who worked in the background to make this production possible - making props, costumes, hair styles, lights, programs, and hosting the casts, and to the parents of all the students who put forth so much time and effort.

And above all, the cast! To Carla Hammon, Chuck Embs, Leslie Philip, Shonda Fowler, Greg Brya, Jill Meister, Brad Wieferich, Amy Cooley, Sherry Garver, Danny Bordui, Jason Brewer, Chris Boudreau, and to all 78 DeWitt High School students of the 1987 musical and to all our students who support the musical each year. Good work!

DOWLING'S MAKE POPULAR HANDMADE WOODEN TOYS

Debbie and Tom Dowling spend a good many hours in the workshop of their Herbison Road home, producing handmade wooden toys like this bunny pull-toy and hook-and-ladder truck.

Tom Dowling's handmade wooden toys fill the front display window of the Willard Reed Agency on Main Street this month. Tom and his wife Debbie have earned an enviable reputation in local art circles for the finely crafted woodwork. Their handmade Noah's ark, with seven pairs of animals on its deck made of various woods, is a children's favorite, but there are many others to choose from - trucks, cars, alligators, bunnies and a parade of other toy merchandise around the state. Their son Clay, 16, a sophomore at DeWitt High School, and daughter, Jennette, 10, fifth grader at DeWitt Middle School, assist their parents by putting the finish - a non-toxic mineral oil - on most of the toys, and sometimes by helping at the shows.

Tom, who works for General Motors Service Parts organization, recently began venturing into a new woodworking area for him - fashioning

Community Church to Sponsor Pre-Lenten Spiritual Adventure

The term, "house of the Lord," could take on new meaning this spring when "adventurers" from the local DeWitt Community Church spend 50 days opening their homes to Christ. Beginning on March 1st, the church will join thousands of others across the country in a special Spiritual Adventure entitled, "50 Days to Open My Home to Christ"

The adventure is sponsored by the national radio broadcast, "The Chapel of the Air," which can be heard on WUNN, Mason [1110 on the dial] at 7:30 a.m. The adventure is an annual event dedicated to helping participants experience rapid spiritual growth through a time of intense Bible study, prayer and Christian outreach. This year's theme, "50 Days to Open My Home to Christ," will help local residents better recognize Christ's presence in their homes and see his involvement in their day to day lives.

As Pastor Fred Nose of DeWitt Community Church explains, "Christ promised us, as his followers, that he would dwell with us - actually live in our homes on a day to day basis. But because we can't see him with our physical eyes, sometimes we forget that he's a member of our household! So this year, for the seven weeks leading up to Easter we're going to concentrate on recognizing and welcoming the Lord in our homes. As we open our homes to him, we're expecting to see some dramatic changes in the way we live and relate to both the Lord and each other."

Each Adventurer will agree to follow regular spiritual disciplines throughout the 50-day study, including a daily God hunt, prayer, Bible study, verbal affirmation of other family members, and making Sunday worship the high point of the week. A 40-page Adventure Journal containing scripture readings weekly assignments, and a place to record daily progress will be available to each Adventurer.

If you're interested in learning more about the 50-Day Adventure planned for March 1 through April 19, please contact Pastor Fred Nose at DeWitt Community Church by calling 669-5133. Group studies will be formed and community involvement is welcomed.

Dowlings take their turn staffing the shop there, which is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday, Thursday, and Saturday, and 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Friday.
